"You and I"

 Wo mincls without a single thought:" "it's my fatal fascination:" "let the royal tongue wag;" "how clean you look!" are bywords today at Lewis and Clark, not becatue of themselves, but because they were immortalized boy fourteen senion $A$ 's in the class play, " You and 1," ond Jay 8 and 9 . But the clever lines were far from the ercatest attraction in this super-production which carried its atudience from tears to laughter in such rapid succession that they could scarcely recover from one dramatic situation in time to appreciate the next. The interpretations of the leading roles, and all parts were leads, were musually fine in high school sturlents.

Marian Mamn, the "you" of "You and $1, "$ in the Friday night presentation, rendered her part of the midelle aged mother with a confidence and charm that was almost professional. Her lovely, gracious manner enthralled the andience, and her every gesture was grace itself. She was particularly appealing in her sorrow wer the mandapiness of her hushand, "TVatey" and the disapponintument of her son, "Rickey:"

Grace Rice, who had the same role Saturday might, interpreted it a trille differently: She was more the sweet, attractive wife who has managed to hold her husband"s love for twenty years than the patient, loving mother who was capable of great sacrifice. She was perhaps a trifle poung and vivacious for a woman of forty, but her maturity showed up to advantage in the scenes with her extremely young, impulsive son.
"Nanny:" as the mother was called herereone, her son included, possessed at husband who was her pride and joy. Matland IThite, otherwise known as "Mater." was a business man who had given up the painting he loved to marre the woman he loved more. Sfer twento years, however, he was still yearning to hold a brush in his hand and see a picture grow tunder his eyes. TTe was finally persuaded to let business go and patint for a sear: but at the end of that time had done nothing lout a picture which was bought by the president of his company to adrertise sorap). He was finally able to conduer his own desire to go abroad and study art and instead give his son a chance her sending him away to learn architecture. It was, of course, a great sacrifice, but he was broad enough to do for his son what he had not done for himself. It was a hard part and was ably taken by IIarold Wilson, Friday, and Warren Russell, Saturday:

Both bors lost their individualities in the character of Matey. Facepting for some such remarks as "Doesn"t Warren look nice in a tux?" the audience almost forgot Russell and Wilson in Matey, the successful business man but disillusioned artist.

David Hawkins, as Geoffrey Xichols both mights, scored a triumph. The gallant, temperamental novelist endeared himself as much to the audience as to the maid, Bitta. Both nights there was a storm of applause at Hawkins entry, anticipatory of the good acting that characterized him throughout hoth productions. Ite is perfectly at home on the stage, and his fascinating mannerisms and ready laugh were a delightful relief in the rather pathetic scenes.

The action moved rapidly throughout: mo part was allowed to drag. Even in the most touching parts, humbor was mixed with pathos. When, for instance, Romine, beloved of Ricky, was breaking the news to Namm that she could not go through with the marriage, she gravely asserted that she left her mother home eating aspirin tablets. Ricky was the life of the party, and even in his deepest sorrow over Romic assumed a gayety that was pathetic. This part was played by L.loyd Warner, Friday night, and by Walter J. Smith, Saturday.
"Ricky" Warner's happy boyish smile and snappry eyes showed off to advantage on the stage. He was typically the carefree, impulsive "youngest living graduate," his mother's darling, his father's joy: Ricky's self-confidence, though bordering on conceit. was most amusing, and his clever remarks, coming always at the appropriate moment, were highly entertaining. "Ricky" Warner registered both enthusiasm and discouragement equally well. Though he could hardly realize that "Romny" actually intended not to marry him, his disappaintment, when he did understand, was rery real.

Smith put practically the same interpretation upon the part. and was all pep and ambition. IIe, too, used his eyes to adrantage and as a toreader in the thiird act could scarcely help but inspire the love of the fair Romic.

Ronnie was a sweet. winsone girl, though modern in every respect. Geraldine Bishell. who played Romie (her real name is Veronica Duane) Saturday night, put more dramatic feeling intn the tragic scenes, while Fern Ifeidenreich was more the stubloorn child, capable, however, of a wonderful sacrifice.

The role of Etta, the maid who turned model, was played with perfection hy . Ihberta Beeson, Friday night, and Ruth MacCuaig, Saturday: Their facial expressions when posing were an entertainment in themselves, as was the confidential conversation betwneen Etta and Geoffrey Nichols. She found Xichols so entertaining merely because he listened while she informed him ".lly dear, my bridge is deplorable" and tanght her how to say golf, that she insisted on calling him Geoffrey. Where Miss lieeson impressed with her entries, it was on the exits that Miss MacCuaig aronsed admiration. She fairly swept out of the room after Namy bronght her down from her high perch as a lady be telling her to clean the silver. Both executed their role with equal charnin and to the extrente delight of the large audiences.

Another strong character was C. 'T. W'arren, president of the firm to which Matey belonged and as stern a business man as ever lived. Willard Meyerhoff and Jack Littlemore domed business suits, mustaches and erisp airs and made typical G. T's. Poth were brusk, well-meaning friends of Matey and, on occasion, could be pleasant, eren gallant to the ladies. This part was another that required careful interpretation and was very satisfactorily done.

One of the triumphs of the plaw was the double conversation that took place in the first act. Is Ricky and G. T. discussed business on the davenport. Watey and his wife were talking alonut Genffrey Nichols on the other side of the room. The informality added a great deal to the atmosphere of the act and was an example of dramatic achievement. Certainly a great deal of credit is due Miss Imn Reely, who so carefully and patiently coached the casts to such a degree of excellence.

There was something new in the way of setting also. The chandelier hanging from the ceiling was doubly effective since it has not been used before in our auditorium. The pictures of Etta were painted by Miss Carol Conrad of the art department.

Along with the artistic setting comes the selection of clothes. Luelia Andre and Joanne Dowling, wardrobe mistresses, made the girls even more lovely by the gowns that ther picked out for them. The boys were walking advertisements for men's sport wear, with everything from socks to ties immaculate and in the lest of taste.

Many of those who cane Friday were so pleased that they came again Saturday: There was a good deal of varicty in the interpretation of the parts, and even in the settings. A different doll was used in the attic Saturday, for instance. Perhaps it was becatise the baby doll screamer "Mama" every time "Romnv" or Xichols tried to vent their feelings on it that longlegred (ieneriere was substituted and the mamatololl was made to ricle a rocking horse Saturday night. lout it was variets.

Judson WValdo Mather contributed his share wwatds the two evenings beg the delightful musical mogram that he render ed. The organ selections given both eremings were as follows:

The ushers, who were very attractive in their many-colored artist smocks, were: Friday-Dorothy Saborn, head, Nadeline Carter, Fonence Duncan, Firances Swaboda, Dernice Buss. ## Fitness

Some times I play
That my own soul
Is a little brown pasteboarel box
And it is my task
To fill it up
To its very brown pastchoard top.
And as I tell
My own dear friends.
I hope that little old box
Is filled right to
Its corners square
And level at its top.
I hope the sides aren't
Bulged a bit
To distort my funny old loos
And the lid will Fit just as it should
On that four cornered pasteboard top).

The Lewis and Clark Organ

He graduation of the class of June, 1925, will mark the successful completion of one of the greatest projects ever attempted by any educational institution in the Enited States-the purchase and installation of a $$ 23,000$ pipe nrgan through ciforts of students and teachers alone.
The organ project, which was in consideration for several Years, Was started in March, 1921. Classes immediately started pledging their graduating gifts to the organ fund, the pledges averaging a minimum amount of $$ 1,500$ a year 11 , to and including the chass of Junce, 1927.

Throughout the campatgn to pay for the organ, the keynote was that there shoukd be no outside solicitation. Instead. erery lewis and Clark student was asked to cstablish an individual project through which he could earn money for the fund.

Class pledges, faculty wifts, $$ 1,000$ from the Girls Athetic ( mion, and other sources hurried the completion of the payments, till this June marks the ending of the mammoth project.

The organ, pictured on the opposite page, was manutactured and installed by the Iustin Organ Company of IFartford, Connecticut. It is one of the finest in the Northwest, and has receised national recognition in sereral publications, notable among these being Collier's weekly:

Radio Robert

on Joxes was a Radio "Ham". Nmost any evening could be heard the steady dah dit dah dit of his transmitter. 'The Radio Shack in the Jones' back-yard was a tumble-down, disreputable-looking stack of boards; but, like many others in the country, it was the acme of perfection in the eyes of the "Ham". Abont its interior was scattered a tangled, hopeless-looking. congloneration of apparatus, for Bob) boasted the mosi complete supply of "parts" in town.

Bob always did a great deal of experimenting, but late one spring there was masual activity in the Shack. He had just been promised work with a lumber company as soon as school elosed for the stumer vacation. Immediately, Bob had decided to take a radio receiving set with him. I lis present receiver was far too bulky for convenient transportation in a pack-sack, so Bobl planned a new set. Lifer many hours of study he decided to build a one-tube reflex.

For the next two weeks Bol worked as if all the legions of red imps of mythology were after him. Where confution had been before, chaos now held absolute control. Batteries, binding-posts, rheostats, receivers, switches, screwdrivers, taps, and tools of all descriptions were piled upon the table, while wire, in coils and rolls, all sizes and lengths was to be found overhead, under foot, and in all corners until the whole place resembled a gigantic spiderweb more than it did a wireless station.

It was slow, particular work, so several weeks passed before the new set was completed. It reposed on the table, truly a beautiful piece of work, with polished panel of bakelite, glistening bakelite dials, reiplendent with their white markings: a gleaming semicircle of silvery taps, and perfectly spaced binding-posts which shone like stars against the dark panel. Certainly it was a thing to be prond of, if it only worked.

Bol had planned to test the new set, but his evenings were mysterionsly filled with labor of another kind--his friends said it was geometry. Howerer, school closed with the set still untested.

The next evening he arrived at camp five. It was deep in the forest, connected with the nearest town by only one telephone line, which was frequently blown down. The occupants of the camp were all humberjacks, the hardest-boiled crew west of Alissoula. Bob felt lost among the crowd of rough, swearing men.

The next morning, the "Kid", as they called Bob, was started "swamping", or clearing brush before the sawyers. The work was hard, but there was plenty of time to talk. The sawyers, who were the roughest of the bunch, delighted in "kidding" the newcomer. One of them suddenly became curious, "Say, Kid", he said, "what's the idea of bringin" a nummber three pack-sack up here? I bet you got a whole campin' outfit."
"I had to use a large one," Bob replied; "there wasn't room for my radio set in a number two.'
"A what:" yelled the big fellow.
"A radio set," replicd Bob.
"Jumpin" old Jupiter!" howled the logger; "did you hear that, Bill!"

But Bill didn't answer, for his loud gulfaws made an answer unnecessary:

The news spread rapidly, so that nioht the whole camp was laughing about the "Kid" and his radio set. Most of then scoffed at the idea of operating a radio set there, while a very fell admitted that it might work, although they were very doubfful. Bob strung his antennae that evening, but had mo chance to try the set.

During the next day: the "Kid" and his radio set were the principal topic for discussion. One old logger sat on a stump, industriously cherring "Brown's Mule" between sentences. "I seen one of those Radios once," he said; "but all I heard was a lot of buzzes and squeaks. I don't think any Kid is goin' to show me any better, either."

The fellow working with him replied, as he made a cigarette, "Guess you're right. Blaze; wouder what Chipmunk thinks about it?"
"Chipmunk", who was the forman, thought that radio set was "haywire". "Never did see one that worked", he said at supper. "I'll bet a week's wages that the Kid can't get a squeak out of the fake."

No one took up his bet.
After supper Bob brought forth the set. His hopes were centered on just one question. Would it work? If it did, he Page Sezocuty-Three Brush (r. Rumning toward camp 5 . Rush hig erew at once, or camp) will be destroyed."

"I.ookout station at Roundtop," Bob replied.
"Chipmunk" hastily dressed, at the same time yelling, "Roll out, you loafers; there's work to be done! llury up there, Jack: we got to fight fire."

The bis logeser addressed, looked startled for a moment. then leaperl from his bunk. "There's a fire, boys," he eried.
"I leh, in the stove, I suppose." growted a sleepy fellow: who was awakened be Jackes yell, thinking that it was morning.
" Voure wrong this time," replied latk; "ask (hipmunk."
The cook was aroused, so that there was an enormons pile of dongrinuts and an immense poi of "red hot" colfee ready when the men appeared at the cook-shack.

They were soon on their way, after consuming enormotn quantities of the doughouts and fiery coffee Fach one carried a pack-sack contaming "emergency rations", besides a showel, grub hoe, and ase. Rapidly they pushed ahead thru the tangled masses of fallen trees, bushes, and vines. Each man wats filled with the spirit of aderenture natural to all "timber beasts". They knew of the hours of heart-breaking toil which lay ahead, fot they sang and cracked jokes as ther proceeded. "The foreman led the way, closely followed by his men. liob Jones was there too: it was a new adrenture for him, so he meant to make the most of it.
$\backslash$ fter an hour of exceedingly diflicult progress through the underbrush, they arrived at the fire Exept for torn clothing and scratched faces, the eren were in fine condition for the battle with the fire, which alreade cowered several acres. "Chipmunk" distributed his men with the skill of an experienced ranger. 'The men were fresh, so they soon had it splendid fire line started. It was necessary to remose erery hit of vegetable matter in a line several feet wide the whole distance around the fire Eivery foni of the completed trench had to be patrolled constantly so that sparks would not star. new fires on the other side.
Pase Seienty-Fize

The flames raged and roared as they rushed through the thick growih of trees and underbrush. Until the fire "crowned", the men had a chance to win, but, when it did, nothing could stop the great flames, which would leap from treetop to treetop with the speed of the wind and the power of a million devils. It was like a gigantic poker game, with the camp, the forest, and the lives of the men at stake. The loggers knew this and reveled in the unfair contest with super-human powers.

Gradually, the night wore on, and the men grew tired; but the fire grew stronger with each passing minute. Solid sheces of tlame leaped upvard, changing immense trees into gigantic torches: sparks showered by millions upon the perspiring men, but still they fought on in the terriffic heat. Their clothing was in tatters, and their hands were blistered, but the fight must be continued, for a wind had sprung up and the fire was likely to "crown" at any moment. If it did so, they would be roasted like flies trapped in a hot oven. They were nearly exhausted, yet they must fight on. Only a few more ieet of trench was needed, but the flames were sweeping down on them; nothing could resist that terriffic heat, yet the trench must be completed! Only a few feet of the thick brush remained. The men fonght doggedly; they were losing, the fire was gaining! Its hot breath withered the leaves of the trees; the sizzling sparks started miniature blazes behind them. They kept on, but each painful stroke was weaker than the last: each inch gained was harder than the last. It seemed as if they had lost, for the fire was upon them and they were exhausted: Bob, who had been patrolling, rushed up, and, seizing a shovel, began to work like the seren derils. Following his example, the loggers made a last supreme effort. They resembled men of another age as they toiled savagely, demolishing the last stretch of brush. The flames roared defiance, but they were defeated, for the workers suddenly saw mothing before them but the other end of the trench.

They had won! The flames rushed forword, then suddenly stopped as they met the bare earth.

It was dawn when the Government fire-fighters arrived. ouly to find their work done. The ranger in charge was a bit surprised, so "Chipmunk" told of Bob's exploit. At the last, he turned to the "Kid", saying, "T want to apologize for the hunch, Boll. I bet a week's wages that the set wouldn't work. You win!"

A Day with Chief Joseph

 IIE morning sun was fow in the east. Scarlet and golel rays shone on the peaks with surpassing brilliance: while the eastern side of every ridge was warming and waking with the call of daytime, but the western sides were, like the deep valleys, still dark and asleep. The Forester, too, was asleep. The sun gradlwally crept over the ridge, waking the blucjays and camprobbers who started their meaningless squawking as they flew from tree to tree. The Forester awoke, saw the sumshine on the ridgelog of his tent, heard the noise of the hirds, and lazily got up. This was the day, he remembered. when he was scheduled to start on the grazing survey, collecting, specimens of grasses and other sheep forage for Uncle Sam's herbarium. It was his duty to determine whether or not his district of the national forest was stritable for grazing sheep.An hour later he started. For equipment the Forester carricel mothing but a swall homemade botanical press for carrying specimens, a camera, an automatic pistol, and at lunch, securely tied into a pocket. ITis clothes were frayed and faded: he wore riverman's shoes, woolen trousers cut off, or "Stagged", just above the shoetops, a red stag shint with many patched tears and rips. Tis felt hat had the brim removed so that it would not catch on smags in the deep woorls.

The trail which the woodsman followed led along the mountainside through a desolate, almost barren, piece of country which had been swept by a forest fire many years before. Bear grass and huckleberry bushes grew along the trail which was an ancient Indian highway dating back hundreds of years; used frequently by Chief Joseph on his many hunting trips and also in his wars with the white soldicrs. It seenter to the Forester that the spirit of the great chieftain, former lord of morthern Idaho and western Montana, was with him. The peaks, which were once used as lookouts by the Indian, vallers where he once tracked the bear and ells, the creeks where he fished, as well as every rock, tree, and ridge. seemed to hold memories of Joseph and his band. Tracks of deer filled the trail in manv places, and the honfprints of elk were seen by a spring. Both animals were plentiful, but much less numerons than in the day's when the Indian hunted on the momntainside.

The Forester left the trail after he had traveled seremal miles, heading down the hill toward a creek which was a couple of miles away. Chipmunks and rock-squirrels fled with loud warning, from their lookonts on tall weeds and rocks, as he approached. Wif one spot he satw an old gronse hen with three chicks which guick-1 and silentlo hid themselves as the man appeared. After ten minntes of searching, the young ones were found, three ting balls, of Inuff, each about the size of a large walum! The mother, who had flown to the top of a dead tree. kept a colose watch oner her youngsters; but it was mot dintil sereral minutes atier the formester hat geme that she rejoined her family and resunted the dares business of eating berties. Ihackleberties and gromse-herries, which are a dwarfed member of the huckleberry fanily, grew almondantly on the side of the mountain.

The hillside became steeper until it was just a series of rock cliffs ranging from five to fifteen feet in height. Were. the man was obliged to follow the dried bed of a stream. It was impossible to climbl) uplarard, so the descent. when once beginn. had to be continued. Several times, when cantionsly rounding a cliff or stopping to pick a specimen of some grass. the woodsman started to slide. but each time a quickly graspod bush checked him and prevented a rapid descent of three thonsand feet of the roughest hillside in the land that Crod forgot. It was a tedions, particular journer that kept the Forester wondering in what shape a man would reach the creck below after bouncing over a hundred cliffs and coasting through as many rock-slides. It was not an attractive prospect, he thought; it was a trip that even an Indian would nerer make twice! The spirit of old Chief Joseph still seemed to be with him, but this time it was langhing at the trouble of the white man who now occupied his old hunting-ground!

The occasional hembock and balsan trees of the higher altitude now gave way to yellow and white pine, with some firs and tamarack. The grasses were finer and not so hards. as those alonee, but the mountain heather, another relative of the huckleberry and kinnickkinnick, still grew in dense masses forming a carpet for the ground at the base of each cliff. Its bright red flowers. no larger that the head of a pin, which. earlier in the rear had heen marivaled in beaty, were now replaced with tiny berries of a deeper shade.

Font by font the Forester descended, grasping ronts or anything convenient, sometimes climbing over a cliff. The sun becane hoter: it seemed that every rock or ihorn cut his hands. Dust choked hime and onvered his borly: Still the creek scemed far below! Cliff after cliff was passed: rocks rolled from every side; sometines he nearly went with them; and as he watched each bowlder splash in the water, it seemed to him that the next time he would be content to use Chici Josephn's trail, which he had started on, instead of cutting across country! The sun was overhead by the time he reached the botton and gazed back up the mountain. Therecthousand feet high it rose, eet the loorester had traveled only three-quarters of a mile in descending it!

I much certainly tasted good to the tired man as he ate by the mountain creck. An hour later he started downstrean. There was no trath, and the monntains rose steeply on both sides, so the best hishmay was the middle of the creck although it fell in many rapicls and was bocked very frequently by log jams. In erery pool could he seen a number of trout. Raspberry and thimblebery bushes grew on the banks in close company with willows and pines. The air was delightfully cool in contrast with the bare mountainside, although the water was cold and strongly suggested the melting snowdrifts on the peaks and high ridges. Two miles downstream the Forester reached the river, which was like a large edition of the creek down which he had been traveling.

The strean was very low so that many rocks were visible above the surface, and on them the Forester saw a number of tiny water-sinakes enjoying the sunshine. There were fish, ton, in the pools, the same cut-throat trout of the creck. but ranging from a few inches to two feet in length! Down the river he waded until a faint outline on the bank showed the Indian trail. The old Chief was still with him, reflected the Forester. bere in a bend was a point of land on which he used to camp and smoke his venison!

It was late in the afternoon when the woodsman started the climbl up the trail from the river True to the Fndian custom it followed the rockiest, steepest ridges. The dust in it told a story which the Forester's trained eve easily read. I congar had come down from the momntain that afternoon. Its tracks were very fresh: perlaps it was hidden near the trail watching the man! Several coyotes had passed that wav in the morning: their tracks pointed uphill toward the high places where young grouse chicks were abunclant! The man kept a close watch for the yellow dogs as he climbed, and once as he stopped to shoot at a hawk, he reflected, there wouldn't be many grouse left alive by winter. It was hard work climbing that threethousand feet. but not so perilous as the descent made earlier in the dar, for the wise old Indians had built their trail on the main ridge where horses could be used. Darkness cane when the Forester was still several miles from caurp, but he kept on through the deep thickets of balsam. ()ceasionally a deer bounded from the trail before him, and once he felt that some larger animal was near him at the side of the trail, probably an old brown bear out for an evening of exploration. Bats jerked back and forth between treetrunks: an owl hooted somewhere before him. The Forester hurried on, for a cold wind had started to blow across the ridge. Stumps and rocks assumed the shapes of strange beasts as the woodsman passed; a single porcupine blocked the trail, but slowly turned out as the man appreached. It last the Forester reached camp, feeling the day well spent for he had made the acquaintance of Joseph, greatest chieftain of the West!

Lenine and Trotsky

EXINE is a red-headed woodpecker who inhabits the back yarcl. 'lrotsky, a squirrel, is his boon companion and his accomplice on all his foraging expeditions. Trotsky's strong point is talking. I enine's is listening. 'The first thing you hear in the nomines. is Trotsky, and the last thing you hear at night is Trotsky, talkinge to, or rather talking at, Lemine, who is rery impolite and harkens not, to put it poetically; on the jewels of wisdonn that (lrop) from Trotsky lips. Fie goes calmoly on linnting for bugs and worms in the trees. When lie finds one, he encks his brilliant red-head on one side, and, while eating liis catch, meditates.

What he thinks alout wo one knows. Tt may be that he is planning the next rate on the corn bin, or it may be that le is just meditating on the evils of gossip and thanking his lucky stars le is not cursed with a tomgue like Trotsky's. 'This, however, is nothing in Trotsky's young life, and he goes on merrily chattering. occasionally stopping to crack a pine nut or shy an apple seed at lecnine.

Trotsky's dwelling is the woodshed. Snvone entering this sacred domain of his royal high Trotskyness is met be the indiguant figure of a fat little squirel, who scolds away fiercly until the intruder is gone. Naybe he is protecting a possible Mrs. Trotsky? No one has ever seen Mrs. Trotsky, if she even exists: and if she does, she is probably very quiet and subdued from long listening to Trotsky.

Wroe to a rival squirrel who ventures brazenly into Trotsky's territory. The is lucky if he escapes with any fur at all, while the common ordinary human being tiptoes guiltily into the sacred domain, grabs the nearest pieces of wood, and "beats it" for the door. Feren Tenine is not allowed in this Sanctum Sanctorum. Indeed it is doubtiul if he has any desire to enter. Live bugs are mostly found on growing wood, and Tenine prefers his meat strictly fresh.

In the city the predominating noise is street cars; out here it's Trotsky. That gentleman certainly is the most persistant talker within miles around. Tou go to sleep to the tume of Trotsky. Tou wake up to the tune of Trotsky, and. you feel very sorry for the possible Mrs. Trotsky, who has to listen to it all the time, for l.enine has sense enough to fly away after nightefall.

If Trotsky erer slecps, no one knows when, where, or how. If he does, he probably talks in his sleep or at least suores. Poor 1 enine comes out at the little end of the horn in his consersation, if there is any little end to come out of, after Trotsky has talked through the said horn all day. The only consolation is that Lenine and Trotsky don't quarrel. If they did-life wouldn't be worth living for then Trotsky wouldn't stop for refreshments.

You will perhaps wonder how they came by their extraordinary names. Trotsky came by his in a peculiar way. I was to look up some material about Leon Trotsky; the Russian leader, for English. After searching high and low and finding mothing, 1 disenvered, at last.——_ ! only half an article about him. The other half, including the hair and eyes from his picture, had been eaten! The fanily at once decided to call the little squirrel responsible for this terrible deed, Trotsky.

Tenine's name came, parily from his brilliant red head, inherited from a long line of red-headed ancestors, and partly from his constant association with Trotsky:

When any member of the family wishes to go to sleep, he thows an apple at Trotsky, and eren if it doesn't hit him, he stops to take out the secels: and if one is lucky, he can go to sleep in the interval. I believe I will go and throw an apple at Trotsky.

Mary White.

Starvation Time

Inere was a time when our family used to gather round the festive board with ravenous appetites, and eat, and eat, and eat. But alas! those good old days are now but a dear, dead memory of the fong. forgotten past. We are dieting. What a world of significance lies in that seemingly simple clanse! "We" may be a beantiful word, representing cooperation, fellowship, and all that; but it loses its charm when placed before "are dieting" and applied to a family.

It was none other than the head of the house and fanilly, 1)ad, that first decided that he should and would acquire the traditional sylph-like form. His intentions. I'll admit, were good; but his method of procedure was nothing shot of criminal. Had he tried to waste away by tramping the virgin woods or by rumning about in the trackless wilderness, or some such thing, I hardly think there would have been any objection. His idea, howerer, was merely to eliminate the non-essentials from his diet. Merely! It was with tears in our eyes that we bid a sorrowful farewell to sugar, cream. butter, and rich desserts; for of course we had to remove temptation in the form of aforesaid unnecessaries from the table.

None of the fanily shrank appreciably, however, so mother advanced the theory that we might pay a little more attention to that despicable creature, the caloric. Of conrse we had to cut down on the number of calories consumed; and. in so doing, cut down on our evening menu by omitting potatocs, white bread, rice, fat meats, and everything rich in carbohydrates. The months of famine had set in, but the worst was yet to come!

Football season arrived. Oh, despised sport! It made my brother go into training; and the ever obliging family: at least the part of it with culinary inclinations, helped brother by not putting before him any cake, pie. pudding, or candy. But the last straw was not reached until mother acpuired an ulcerated tooth and could eat nothing that had to be chewed.

In frantic desperation the remaining normal members of the familv tried to assemble our seatered wits and meet the impending crisis. We realized that without aid from some kind benefactor we must surely perish from the pangs of hunger; so we sent for mincle in hopes that the goose would again hang high with company: in the house.

Truly "life is but a graveyard of buried hopes." Uncle Will was just recovering from a lone illness and could eat mo proteins! 'Twas then, when I sat with a tremendous appetite before a table covered with all manner of good-white linen, salt and pepper shakers, candles, and a dish of celery, that I firmly resolved to derote my life efforts to the starving children of American dieting parents.

Vita

O wonder world! I lift my window
And here, stirring, breathing with the machinery
Of living things and man's inventions, you exist.
O summer wind, shepherd of the elouds,
Author of fantastic pictures, paint the starlit might with backness,
Give gladness to the toiling roots.
Grow old, great world, and pessimistic.
Man may hew your forests down, he may build his hot paved cities
On your fairest meadows, but let me live and dream.
Let me listen to the night sounds,
Let me guess their varied meanings, let me dream of true derotion
In the music of the evening.

Cruise of the LC-25

 Omananter Rothrock swore as the bige clirigible gave a lurch which sent him against the wall of the pilot cabin, crushing a valuable package of bootleg cigarettes in his hip pocket."Dog-gone that woman!" thought Harry, tossing out the ruined "pills" and thinking of Congresswoman Helen Swan, leader of the big campaign which "put over" the thirty-first amendment, prohibiting tobacco. Niss Swan had been opposed by the keen political leaders, June 'Tiffany, Evelyn Kimmel, and Fred l'ickard, who were backed by the tobacco merchant's association, of which James Iictts, Wayne IIcrtzka, Lloyd Warner, Ralph Smith, Lola Stannard, and Ruby Cole were prominent members. Charles Libby had aided the movement greatly with pictures of bathing beatities whose complexions were ruined by tobacco smoke.

The big airship, LC-25, which Rothrock, assisted by Lieutenants Alphonse Coppula and Maurice Durham, commanded, had struck its first Aretic gale over Behring Strait. The LC-25 was the latest product of the Malstrom-Chenoweth plants at Spokane Field, and had been designed by engineers Rod Ross and Raymond Marks, with the assistance of the noted inventors, Joe Gaskell, Kemard Jones, and Ieonard Smih.

The gate increased in strengtl, but the dirigible still maintained a high speed, for ()tto Gast, Merle IImmmel, Lyle Maskell, and James Elam kept the eight big motors roaringe under the direction of Chief Engineer Walter J. Smith. The Radio operators, Gordon Brown, and Fred Long stood ready for any emergency, although pestered by̌ Mrs. Edith Kizer Luck, one of the passengers who insisted on sending long radiograms to her husband, the great "Hard" Lack, coach of the Spokane College chess teams.

In the passenger section a violent argument was going on before an amused audience consisting of Lester Humplireys. Corine Swenson, Norman Lewis, Geneva Beyer, Verne Johnson, Dorothy Jack, and Mary lhungate. Luther Fendler of the Spokane Press and Welly Shibata of the Tokyo Yorodzu couldn"t decide whether or not cuss-word puzzels in the Japanese language were a success. They finally agreed to arbitrate, so referred the matter to Myron Weaver and George Mitchell, members of the crew: It was never decided for at that moment there was a terrible crash, and the ship started to fall. Yiolently it lurched, catsing liuman collisions whel would have broken many hasks in the days before l'resident lithel Robericon, with the assistance of her worthy hasband, Jlenre laall, succeeded in cuforeing the eightecnth amendment. As it was, the only box of cigars aboard, smuggled on and owned jointly by David Hawkins and betty Campleell. Was connpletely ruined when blanehe lopkins fell on it as the ship phanged. The I.C-25 was only a hundred fect abose the ice when pilot Ronald Bronm regained control of the rudders, landing her with a bump that drove (iene Endslow's head thru the top of the cablin into a bag of gat. Endslow rapidly withdrew his head and rushed for the door, followed by the other passengers, with the ship's chemist. "Shorty" Mheller in the lead. They reached the cold air ontside but had scarcely recovered from the gat attack When Commander Rothrock yelled, "Jigerers!"

At once a barrage of smowballs fell about them and the poor royagers saly great mumbers of horrid appearing satages adyancinge on all sides with the most terrible looks. The leader even WINKだ) at Finnice (owie, catusing her on faint from termer!
"What do you want?" asked Data (irele in a timid voice.
"(iet into your session rooms! What do you mean by being in the halls after $8: 15^{\circ \prime \prime}$ replied the chicftain in a terrible roice.
"What language is that? ${ }^{-0}$ thought the wondering tratelers. Indeed, they were strange words, mankown to the civilized world! Jo Dunning tried to talk with the fierce chief in both (hinook and l'ig latin, but he understond neither.
"Where are you soing? Von know better than to try skpping the sevend periot!". Was his reply: "Come with me to the affice!"

Is he satid this, the tall chief seized "In" by the ear and led her off across the ice. Bach savage captured a victim in the same manner and started after the leader. For mans hours the procession wathdered across the ice floes until, finally: ihey reached an island where the air was warmer. Is they proceeded inland. the deep snow of the shore was succeeded by pine trees and rasplery hushes : and at the center of the island the climate and regetation were tropical.
"Where are you taking us?" asked Jo, casting a wistful eye at a large, well laden banana tree.
"Put your gum in the waste-paper basket!" commanded her captor.

After rounding a large bamboo thicket, the prisoners approached a peculiar looking villase: the houses appeared to be made of brick, but upon closer exammation the weary captives

Salw that the walls were built of books-chemistry books, Latin texts, history book-and the buikdings were all roofed with theme paper! A song rose from the field before the village, where a trio of persons were hoeing long rows of yams:
"Just give us a show, and you may know The Orange and Black will win."
"Why!" exclanmed Nina Dicken, "there"s Nice Burgess, Ruth MacCuaig, and Juanita Patrick, singing the old school song! !"

The procession entered the village where they saw a numbber of persons painting the thene paper rools with fountain-pen ink. Among then, the captives recognized Jances and Ruth Ashley, Marie Keller, Geraldine Bishell, Vera Klaue, Lulu State, Drma Allen, Florence Meier, Arthur Talbott, Ed. Valliant, Esther Nelson, and Flomer Whitten. The decorators were so industrions, however, that they failed to recognize their captive classmates of ' 25.

As it was nearly dimner time: the sarages, still holding their prisoners by the ears, escorted them to a large buidings with the word "C $\triangle$ WETERK ${ }^{\text {" }}$ engraved on a malnogany board over the door. Forming in line. they were served by a row of cooks. Ceorge Flarding, keel officer of the L,C-25, not enjoying the appearance of the food, spoke of it to the head cook, who replied. "Whell, George, you'll have to be satisfied, as this is all we ever serve."

Harding looked up and was surprised to find that he was talking with Julia Gould! She laughed, and said, "Didn"t you recognize us, George? There's Vera Austin, Helen Shaw, Trma L.uck, and Snna Olson, who have waited on you. Myrtle Cole and Fern Hedenteich are in the kitchen, making tea and toast for the savases, white Bernice Cornchl and Florence Farlcy are fillinge pepper shakers!"

George wanted to talk longer, but the savage guardian jerked him to a table, nearly pulling his ear off!

The shipwrecked passengers were, after lunch, conducted to a yan field and given hoes. The tall chief's parting words were, "Lou"ll get three nights after school if you are caught talking in the study hall!"

Not being able to malerstand the strange words, Nerle Iftmmel, as soon as the chici had left, started to talk with one of the fair laborers already in the field.
"Who are these savages?" he asked.
"Oh, Merle!" she exclamed. "Don't you remember me? I'm Vermadel Kieth! I was captured by the savages ten years ago when my aeroplane was forced to land as I flew over the island. I've been a captive ever since! Nany from the old class are here, all of them slaves to the heartless savages!"
"What are they all required to do, here "" incpuired Merle.
"Oh," Vernadel answered, " Yiolet St. John d' Panncefote, lva L゙tterback, Ruth Schlenker, and Frank MasInnka are our best yam planters, while Ida Lovik, Ed Friemuth, Pearl Eyrich, and Ingeborg Davig have dereloped a fine system for harvesting the crop). Xary White was made oversecr, but she doesn't make us work very hard. Ethel Paulicheck, Helen Hewitt, and Edna Oslund have charge of the supplies for the cafeteria-you know they have a cafeteria here just like the one at L. C."
"Yes," replied Merle, "I ate hash and boiled beans there this noon. Iob Merritt was serubbing the floor, but I didn't get a chance to speak to him. Who are these savages that captured us?"
"We don"t know," said Edna Spring, who, standing near, had overheard his question. "They've had me here fifteen years, but I haven't found out yet! Nobody from civilization can understand their langonage."

Ilaxine Hill arrived at the other end of the field. "I'm so homesick, Maurice!" she exclamed to Lientenant Durhan, "the savages captured Daisy IHmmel, Zeda Joyce, Cerita King, and me just eleven years ago when we were returning from a trip to the north pole. Some of our class are here; lave you heard of the others, Iately?"
"I'es, I have," the Lieutenant replied, "Xaurice Hibschman and Richard Ewen have founded a bank at Chattaroy and are quite successful, although the 'Spend 'our Money' society, of which Joanne Dowling is president, has put all the surrounding banks out of busines. The society now has a large membership, including Louise Kelsey, with her husband, Neal Fosseen, Lloyd Sanderson, Intoinette TTolff, Claude Gerber, Latnra Carson, Leslie Burden, Ruby Friesen, Frances Swohoda, Dorothy Gohhnan, Kenneth Featherman, Dorothy Warman, Nlice IVisman, and Whilip Cohen.
"'Doc" Ispray and John Busby were to compete for the world's temis championship, the day we left: l've been anxious to hear how it came out. Finid Franks was to referee the mateh which was promoted by Willard Meyerhoff, despite protests of his wife, Marie Schmidt. who tried to make him (puit the sports business when he nearly went broke promoting the chanpionship boxing match between Marion Fisher and Henry Lowery: David Iombard has become quite a wrestler, lately. and declares that he will soon challenge the champion, Jack Littlemore."
"Who is police commissioner of Spokane, now ?" inquired Maxine, "I ve always been interested in that office."

Durham scemed interested, too, as he replied, "The old town's gone to the clogs! Marjorie Rean was chosen at the last election, but Ed Fiunseth does all the work. Elizabeth Merriam is mayor; Evelyn Kimmel is commmissioner of public finance; Betty Anderson is head of the public works; and Grace Rice is health commissioner. The rest of the city government is just as bad: Josephine Morris is city engineer; Dorothy Patiison, city clerk; Marion IIill, desk sergeant: and Irene Havens, jailor; while Marjorie Kimble operates the city hall elevator.
"Frances McKee runs a girl's seminary at Valleyfordshe is greatly opposed to co-cducational schools. Dorothy Sanborn taught Botany there for a while, but quit because she says it's more like a cemetery than a school!
"June Rosenhatupt and Warren Russell have gone into partnership in the motion pieture business and have created a whole constellation of new stars. Ruth Farnham, Marjoric Maggin, Pearle Crane, Diddred Crerar, Maxine Blackmore. Hope Molzendorf, Margaret Foster, and Elizabeth Mellon have been especially well received by the public. Their latest and best play, "The Bugeatcher's Pantasy," by Lola Stamnard, in which Dorothy Wrillians stared, was badly mutilated by the board of censors-Jane Neuberger, Robert Purves, llatold IVilson, and Cecil Baker-who cut out all the love scenes!
"A good many of our old classmates have gone abroad, and some of them have been very successful. Ronatd Symms and Roy Wagner, after practising law for a while at Reno, sated for France and got positions as policemen at Monte Carlo; they have already made the enmity of Marian Mann, Duchess of Warwitch, and Catherine Foxsey, the Countess of Boloney, as well as the powerful Earl of Crawfish, Claire Gale. Gene Cullen las been manager of the Casino for the last five years, ably assisted by L tuelia Andre who married him as sonn as 1)ave lombard took up boxing. Willenc Padley, Harrictte (iilbert, and Mary Hamblen started a dime musenm in T enice, but the enterprise failed, so they are now running a restaturant. Dwight latone was elected mayor of Venice last year, and since then has received marriage proposals from a great many spinsters in all parts of Italy; among them are Dorothea Bates, Dorothy Hall, Alice Anderson, I azel Demigne, and Isabel Cooper.
"South America also has attracted several of the old bunch. Lestic Marks and Francis Nocl built the first telephone line across the Andes, and have become quite wealthy: They recently bought the faybird mine of which Fred Johnson is superintendent. It is a rich Bolivian prospect, discovered several years ago by Howard Madden when he explored that part of the country with Charles Lyon, Herbert W'oodward, Victor Regis, and Erich Richter. Elizabeth Crawford and Virginia Brown, who took up Socialism shortly after their graduation, started a rebellion which overthrew the Argentine government. Ralph Blair, one of their lieutenants, set himself up as dictator, but his autocratic ways soon caused another revolution which did away with him and established a governing council composed of Ruth Arnold, Charles Dyer, Alice Dibley, Marjorie Hemphill, Marguerite Keenan, Thoburn Brown, and Edward Bloom. Frances Dew is editor of the leading Socialist newspaper in Bolivia, with a very excellent staff, which includes Carl Nygren, Elizabeth Bevis, Erna Gohs, Justine Belcher, Clarence Diblle, and Carl Splud. Lucille Youngs, Frieda Brandel, Betty White, and Beatrice Tinkhain started a pearl farm which prospered until IValter Murphey and Melvin Luckhardt were hired to manage it.
"Fred Meeds, who was in the United States senate for a while. finally went into the ministry at Valpariaso. I is first duty, it is said, was to unite Elvira Atchison and Louis Batchelor in marriage. Meeds is now confronted with the task of christianizing the members of a Buddist colony in northern Chile. The colony started under the leadership of Augusta Dibble. and contains only such persons of distinction as Pauline Mc, \rthur, Elizabeih P'engelly, Helen Smith, Florence Duncan, Margaret Siockett. Frances Riley: Dorothy Rigsby; Rita McBride, Grace Baily, and Eleanore Wuckle. President Leslic Miller, head of the Chilean government, has promised the church his aid, but I believe that Fired has worked ahead of him. because he acquired a real handicap when Helen Martens decided to marry him after failing in her pursuit of Henry Lowery. She has already promised $W$ illalpelle Hatch, Iernice Buss, and Elvira Blyton that they may be bridesmaids at her wedding."

The Lieutenant paused, then with a startled look over Maxine's shoulder, grabled his hoe and started working with great speed, but it was too late for an awful voice roared. "Go to the office!"

Maxine tried to escape, but a savage-this time an energetic looking woman, wearing glasses-grasped both her and Maurice by the ear and started toward the town hall! They were soon brought into a large courtroon. which, instead of being furnished in the usual manner. contained a roll-top desk with several chairs grouped around it, and a filling cabinet which rested near the wall. Seated in a swivel-chair before the desk was the judge, a tall, dignified man with a very fierce looking mustache. Ile tumed as the two prisoners were brotght forward.
"Mr. Ifart!" they cried, "what are you doing here, annong all of these savages ${ }^{-\prime}$
" You may go, Mrs. Bengel," said the judge. Then, to the prisoners he replied, "1 am glad to see you both, but don't you know that you must not talk while at work in the fields?"
"We couldn"t understand the savages," replied Maxine. "Where are we, and how did you get here?"
"I have been here," returned Mr. I Iart, "since the summer of $1925-$
"The whole world was mystified when the Lewis and Clark faculty vanished shortly after our graduation!" exclaimed Maxine.

Mr. Hart scomled at the interruption, but continned, "The faculty couldn"t bear to teach any longer in the rooms made sacred by association with those brilliant students who sraduated in June of that year so left the old buidding and came to this tropical isle in the Sretic. All of the faculty except me have reverted to savagery:"
"How strange it is," said lieutenant Durhan, "that so many of the old class should be captured here! I wonder what wrecked the I.C-25."
"That is simple," replied Mr. Hart. "Feceling that many people were dissatisfied with the deceptive mame of the North lole, we sent Calvin Smith and Lyle Maskell to erect a real pole in the form of a rigantic pencil. Ionr airship hit this pole in the gale, and rou would have all perished in the coled had not a party under the leadership of Mr. Teakle captured and brought you to our warm island!"

Class Will

, the Class of June, 1925, being about to pass from this aborle of the Human Frailties (Faculty) into the Great Game of Life commonly referred in in Baccalatureate addresses, do hereby make and publish this our last will and testament, and do give, devise and bequeath to the modergraduates certain articles for Which we have no more use.

ITeat 1-Our class director, Mr. II. C. G. Firy and 2.222 of his unsold tickets, lecture course, foothall, concert. etc., we leave to future generations. Mr. liry has been "bequeathed" to future generations just 53 times to date.
Itear 2-The class leaves its combined goorlooks and winning ways to Jiss Stubblefield so that she can intoxicate "Marcel" Nogle with her charms. ( $\mathrm{N} . \mathrm{B}$. 'That is probably what the combined charms of this class would do to anybody:
Prome 3--W'e lease nur sincerest congratulations to Miss Stout and Miss I ean the only members of the faculty io preserve their dignity in the Faculty Follies!
Foma 4-To Miss Finnegan we leave the following choice expressions to be used in typing classes as a variation for the old standby, "Snatch you bald-headed."

1. Lam the tar out of you.
2. Knock the frosting off'n your cake.
3. Beat you to a jelly.
4. Twist you round your own neck, and ram you down your own throat till there's nothing left of you but your shirt-tails sticking out of the corners of your cyes!!
ITEA 5-To the Freshies, we leave the following items of good advice to help them through high school.
5. Obey the elerenth commandinent. "Love thy teachers.
6. Don't eat on the street, it isn't ladylike.
7. Don't brag about getting into high school; it probably was a mistake.

Each of the following testators, being of supposed somed mind and memory does hereby respectively make the devises and bequests here-in-after specifically entmerated.
Item 6-Charles Libby leaves his "loud laugh that speaks the racant mind" to Marian Rigg so that Marian can be IIE. 1 RD in the halls and cafeteria after this.
Item 7-Welly Shibata and Willine Padley leave two Cicern 'Jonies' and five Tirgil 'ponies' to other Classical students, with the provision that Wrelly's favorite "pony", I'egasus, be reserved for future Valedictorians only.
Item S-Edith Kizer and Ray Luck, Marjoric Ream and Ed F'meseth lave their platinum and diamond medals as joint winners of the Four-years-non-stop-cndurance contest to their fellow members of the Nutual Arlmiration Society:
Ttear 9-Warren Russell and Nberta Beeson leave their names scribbled on the back of the class play scenery to the next stage manager to serub off. P. S.-Warren also leaves, as a special bequest, a tin whistle to "Twit" Ehrenberg.
ITEM 10-Neal Fosseen bequeathes his yawn and carefully cultivated air of bored indifference to Virgil Whitaker to be used in Classical Club meetings.
Irem 11 -DeFay Chenoweth and Violet St. John d' Panncefote lease the presidency and vice-presidence of the highbrow Socicty for the Suppression of Smiths to the Tonnowski Twins. The four members of the clan in our class, Walter I. Smith, Leconard Smith, Helen Smith, and Cal Smith are as yet unsuppressed (especially the last one) and though Fate tried to conceal them by naming them Smith, they made a big. impression at L. C.
Itrem 12-Theodore Eric Richter leares his pet box of 'snooshi' to Lawrence Jack. You just know he chews it, and that's the insidious thing about it.
Irear 13-Luclia Andre. "Gene" Cullen, and Dave Lombard leave the leading roles in their little drama "The Eternal Triangle" or "Threc Can go to Shows as Cheaply as One" to anyone who wants to try it. Don't all speak at once!
Itear 14-Marian Mann, Toan Dowling, Louise Kelsey. Augusta Dibble, Gencra Bever, Geraldine Bishell
and Frances McFec leave their positions as the "social lionesses" of the school to Betty Sonmemanm, Gwendolyn Hayden, Ruth Haring, Polly Pring, and Nary Neトinney.
Lrem 15-David Hawkins has nothing worth leaving, but he begreed so hard to be put into the Will-Notoricty is the spice of his life-that we let him leave the comventional bequest, a piece of chewed gum, to posterity.
Prear 16-Fred Johnson, Joe Ciaskill, Gordon Brown, Fired Long, and lestic Marks, class mentbers of the Radlio Chth), leave their ability to get England-and North Central lligh School-to the rematining members of said club).
Trean 17-beneme Findshow and Claire Cale leave their 'lean and humgry look' to Arthur Nitchell. Arthur will have to go on a hunger strike.
Irem 18 -June Tiffany leaves one cafeteria chatir to Miss Carss!! references Evelon Kinnnel, Ruth Farnham. Harriette (iillert, and Iary Hamblen.
Hear 19—_Janes and Ruth Sshley, and Merle and Daisy Tlunnmell leave ther ability to get along together (in public) to other brothers and sisters at I. C. We hopee the others will succect as well as these Seni-ors-why: we have only witnessed three forlats. between and anong then in the whole time they have been at Lewis and Clark!
1Fbat 20-Marion Fisher and Dwight LaLone leave their Valentino eyes and skeikish complexions to I ester Kirkpatrick so that Lester will 10 longer be mistaken for a Palmolive Soap 'adl'.
Item 21 - IVillard Meverhoff and Marie Schmidt leave their touching way of holding hands under the library table to Betty Sonnemann and "Hank" Green.
ITEM 22-Bob Merritt. Charles Lyons, George Mitchel, Ed Valiant, and Louis Batchelor leave their vast sup)plies of 'ego' to the Freshman class. Wre forsee trouble for I. C. When all this 'ego' is let loose on the school.
lrea 23-Maurice Hibschman leaves his dimple to Miss Uright. Remember that little verse,
"A dimple in your chin Many hearts you will win?"

Irear 24-IIenry Lowery and Lhoyd Warner leave their Tiger pictures as conclusive proofs of the Darwinian theory (they both think they detect a resemblance to the "Xissing Link" in their respective physiognomies) to future Lewis and Clark scientists.
Irea 25-Isabel Cooper, Mildred Crerar, Dorothy Rigshy, and Vernadel Keith leave their one-year subscriptions to Suappy Stories and Whiz Bang to the library to help annse brilliant Seniors who never seem to have anything to do but hang over the magazine rack.
Ttem 26-Helen Swan, Harold Wilson, and Farry Rothrock leave two ( $2, ~ I I$, ii) bushels of debate notes to Ralph Edgerton. Ralpla may in time become as fanlous as 1 larry but we hope not quite so conceited.
Trem 27-Lyle Maskell. Verne Johnson, Eugene Muller, Leslic Miller and Alphonse Coppula leave six (uturts of balloon juice (hot air), ne can of vermillion to paint the town red, and the little song about the "hot time in the old town to-nite" to Jack Finnegan and Kenny MeClusky.
Trem 28-Rod Ross and James Betts leave 25 c (2c from the Senior A class treasury and 23 c from the Boy's Union treasury) to pay the Janitor to wash off the mud and footprints from the sides of the fountains where the Freshies have clambered up for a drink.
Item 29-Fred Meads, Leslic Burden, Ronald Broom, and George Harding leave to John Dimeling the consoling knowledge that "Napolean was a small man too.'
Item 30-June Rosenhaupt, Elizabeth Merriam, Betty Campbell, Catherine Hoxsey, Maxine Blakemore, and the Dorothys Sanborn and Williams inc. leave their remarkable ability to ask foolisl1 questions to the Sophomore class. Heretofore the Freshic B's and Senior $\Lambda$ 's have carried off the honors.
Item 31-Norman Lewis and Ralph Blair leave two blackjacks, one jimmy, a skeleton-key; and four sticks of T. N. T. to the "Gang". We hope that with these trivial and umimportant aids to their profession the "Gang" may be successful (?).

1tem 32-Menry Ball, Myron Wearer, Bal Bloom, and Jack 1.ittlemore leave their "maidenly modesty" and "shy reticence" to the small Fry ( X. V $^{\prime}, \%$. ) of the school.
Itean 3.3-kemeth Featherman, Robert Furves, Wayne Hert7ka, and Lester Ihmphreys leave their speed and dasli to Mr. Nogyte so that he can get his session room to convocation before it is all over.
Itian 3t-liern Heidenreich, Julia Gould, Vera Austin, Margaret Sockett, and Blizabeth Bevis leave one bottle of Pest Exterminator with the instructions. "take one tablesperon every half hour until completely cured" to teachers who will assign oral themes once a week 1rea 35 - Mantice Durham, Antoincte IVolff. Josephine Morris, and Nerle thumel leave their beatiful Sopralu-Contrenor roices to the glee club and chorus classes. When these Semiors have graduated there will be much less noise-Pardon, we mean volume-in the aforementioned classes.

1Tram 36-Nelvin Aspray, John Busby, Roy Wagner, and Ronald Symms leave their combined store of knowledge and wisdom ("we gazed and still our wonder grew how those small heads could carry all they knew") to David Flond and (harles Cross. This man keep them out of the Bonehead Session Romm. hou we have our doulbts.
1TEM 37 -The following Seniors leave their enviable track places in other worthe athletes.

1. Ruth MacCuaig leaves her place as winner in the "high and low gurgles" to Amelia Dimeling. 2. Lola Stannard leaves her place as winner in the "standing broad grin" to Helen Wiilliams.
2. Claude Gerber leaves his place as winner in the "shout put" to Dick Wiler:
t. Herbert Woodward leaves his place as winner in the "standing broad bluff" to Ford Smith.
Irean 38 - . 11 remaining members of the class do hereby give all their various vices, virtues, and infirmities as a residuary devise and beguest to Henry Melvin Hart with the advice that Henry keep this Pandora box tightly sealed in his Sanctum Sanctorum to awoid trouble for future generations.

History

arts in September in 1921, two hundred very small, very fueer, and in their own eyes, very important. wons girls and boys trooped into the 1 .evis and Clark Iligh School. They dashed through the halls and shouted. and looked fearfully about them as the took in all the details of that intricate mechanism known as the 1.ewis and Clark High School. They were owerawed a hit by their teachers, be the mumber of students, and by the vastness of the halls and school roons: above all, their treatment at the hands of their elders made them feel rery little inside, although outside they were very wise and verv old. Wint they learned better.

The first event of real importance th this class was the football game with North Central. Jfer many successful battles. those heroes of the freshmen, the footbatl ment, beat North Central in a muddy, sloppe, but altogether thrilling same. . And to those freshmen came their first elimpse of the spirit of l.ewis and Clark, that indomitable something that makes every student cheer happily when victory is certain, and still cheer when defeat is equally certain.

It was this spirit that helpee to bring the ()rean to lewis and Clark. About the time the members of this class were freslmen, it becane kown that the seloos wanted an orean. That was all that was necessary. The response to that need was overwhelming. Townsfolk praised the project : wass and means committees were formed a large. but empte thermoneter with imposing figures on it was painted on a sheet of cancas. and installed in the auditorium. Consocations, cantatas. musicales were given: and the proceeds went to swell the Organ itund which was getting larger every day.

Classes pledged thousands of dollars: the lecture course helped: all were intent on raising the mark on that thermonmeter to Orsan heat. In its sophomore year, the class pledged a thousand dollars to the orsan fund and watched with interest :he thermometer mark jump. It did. Noner pouted in until the thermometer broke, and still it came. Then the thermonneter came down, and before long the auditorium was thmed into a workshop. Hammer, saw, and crowbar had their imning.

The class of June. 1925, sonn settled definitely into its place in selool affairs. They rose from ereen frosh to important sophomores, then to worried Juniors.

The members of the class were begiminge to take part in school affairs. The various clubs of the school received many of them; the foothall, and baseball teams, basketball, swimming, tennis, track and other sports clamed large numbers. The class was becoming a part of the school.

It is the class of Ime, 1925 , that will make the final payment on it. In four years, an organ, the largest in any high school west of Chicago, was installed and paid for, entirely by the students, and through their own efforts. No wonder they are proud of the school, of themselies, and of the Organ. They have a reason.

The fall of 1923 showed that the I ewis and Clark foothall team was made of wonderful material. After a string of victories, the 'Vigers beat the Walla Walla men, then supposed to be the strongest team in the Northwest. Because of that victory the $\perp$.ewis and Clark team received an offer to play against Scott Hligh of Toledo. Talk about going wild! The scene at the station when that bunch left, couldn't be beaten anywhere this side of Bedlam for noise and excitement and hand shaking and good luck's and enthusiasm. The receipts of the telegraph companies in Spokane were just about doubled for the month on account of the messages sent to the team. The final score was 20-10 in favor of Scott High, but that made no difference. Our team had been chosen to represent the West, and that was the main thing. Wre hadn't a doubt that our men had shown Toledo how a real team fights against odds. Ind when the team returned and the school settled back for a moment, the North Central same made us sit up and take notice. Such a tussle! And not a single score to show for it! O-O. Well, they didn't beat us, anyway.

And then at last the class reached the final lap. Seniors! Magic word! Of course, the members of the class were impressed, even if they weren't senior $\mathrm{I}^{\prime}$ s. They clected officers and had meetings and everythin'. And their seats were right down in front to the left of the graduating class in the auditorium. The class elected Harry Rothrock president at that time; Edith Kizer, vice-president; Rod Ross, class treasurer: Calvin Smith, secretary; and Walter I. Smith, fifth executive. The class at last rushed the seats just vacated by the graduated class, and with swelling heads and husky lungs they bellowed their victory cry-Rah! Rah! Rah! Senior A class! Rah! Senior A Class! Rah!

The next thing the class knew. Mr. Fry himself had called them into his room and delivered himself of many things concerning graduation pictures, announcements, cards, and the like.

The class woke $u$ p with a start and decided that each senior would have his photographs taken by whonerer he wished. Shaw and Borden were elected as the class stationers, and Bishop Cross was asked to give the Baccalaureate address. Class officers were then chosen: Harry Rothrock was re-elected president; June Tiffany made vice-president; Rod Ross, treasurer ; Dwight LaLone, secretary; and Ed Funseth, fifth executive. As for the Tiger, that book is as you see, better than ever before in the history of Lewis and Clark! All the plates are new, the cuts new, the book larger, the class bigger.

In looking over the personalities of the class, Ray luck of course comes to the top. Football and basketball letters, and a long experience with the faculty, have made him the best known nember of the class. Edith Kizer is nearly as well known, for it is hard to find Ray when Edith isn't with him. Harry Rothrock has made a name for himself because of his forensic ability, and has been responsible in a large measure for holding the Boys' Union together. 'Then, of coure, there are "Duke" LaLone and "Gus" Dibble, who are rarely seen apart; and Ed Funseth and Marjoric Ream, who wrote "De and my Boy Friend". Ralph Blair and IV arren Russell have stung their way to fortune as the O. B. C. duo.

But, for that matter, everyone in the class has done something or other for the school. Boys' Union, Girls' Federation, athletics, clubs, debating, oratory-all are represented in the class.

The four years (or more) which the members of the class have spent in these "hatls of learning" have been full of work and study, of joy and sorrow, of trinmphs and defeats. Ind they have not been spent in vain. The friends they have made. the knowledge they have gained, the years they have spent, will be remembered by those leaving Lewis and Clark when they lave gone out into the "wide world". What was it the poct said?" Oh, yes! "To you we throw the torch; be yours to hokl it high."
-Dayio Delos hankins.

Star Woe

1 gave my heary to the stars tenight. To the stars that wound, yet shine so bright.
And be their pale and driunk delight
$I$ told them of my heart.
11y heart is cold and still temight.
Fion I told the stars: he their riotous light
And my will and my heart they died in the fight Ind cravenly forght their part.

The fight of the ages, so long and cold:
The fight of the ages, tonight 1 am old
With the knowledge and womder the forlish stars told. . Ind my heart is dead within.

For the one that I loved with all me life.
1 told to the stars: in oun deadly strife.
And their answer wemt to my heart as a knife Wiould sear it in its sin.

ELAEPNG that a man may be down but never out, Coach E. L. "Squinty" Hunter's fighting Tiger basketball team of 1924-25, time after time, snatched victory from almost certain defeat.

Having but two letter men for a nucleus of his team, Coach Hunter built from strong green timber the champions of the city of Spokane, and a tean whose renown spread over the whole Northwest.

Coach Hunter's exceptional work is responsible for two successive city championships, and for the training of athletes whose fame in college may soon spread orer the IVest.

With the return next fall of Pierce Campbell, Hally Buck, Alfred Lel'eaux, and Lconard Kuhnn, prospects are indeed bright for a winning aggregation that will be developed by Coach Hunter as no other coach can do.

Gonzaga at Lewis and Clark

The Notre Dame shock (roop systen of using two teans. one light and one heary, as played by the lBull Pups proved unsuccessful when the Tigers romped over their opponents to a 21 to 5 victory. In playing their first game the Tigers failed to display the form which characterized their games later in the season, hat they were never in danger. From start to finish the Blue and White hoopsters were nutclassed by the more experienced I.ewis and Clark team.

Playing on their own floor, the Eindicott team had a decided adrantage over the invading Tigers, but were defeated by a 19 to 17 score. Their knowledge of the gim enabled the Endicott men to score so freely that the Orange and Black men made an uphill fight to keep on the long end of the score.

The Trigers repeated their early victory over a much improved blue and White lineup) when they chatked up a total of 27 points to 18 for their opponents. The uncanny abilits of Campleell to sink the ball from all parts of the floor was a feature of the game. The fact that the Gonzaga center got the tipoff during most of the same limited the lewis and Clark team's conton of the ball, but the Bull l'ups were outclassed. Three games were schechuled between the two schools but the two decisive wins by the ()range and lilack five made the third game unncessary.

North Central at Lewis and Clark
The inability to shoot fouls caused the Tigers to drop the second clash of the City Series by a $19-16$ seore. The game had the crowd on their toes as it continued first one tean leading and then the other. Up to the last two minutes the Indians had only a lead of one point when Mitchell of N. C. looped a basket and gave his team a safe lead. Hal Buck, L. C. stellar forward showed himself favorably in this game when he looped basket after basket at the most crucial times. North Central having won the first tilt needed but one more win to take the City Championship.

North Central at North Central

Six feet four inches of altitude possesserl by one "Gene" Endslow spelled defeat to the Inclians by a score of 21 to 19 . It was in this game that the long lob pass was introduced to take the place of the shom pass. The lineup was changed so that Smith and Campbell filled the forward positions, Findslow center and LeVeaux and Lowery played guards. This change worked like a charm and the Red and Black hoopsters were dismayed as basket after basket were slid from Enclslow's hand. Endslow scored 13 points and kept North Central from winning three sames straight.

I greater margin was assured, but Coach Hunter used all of his substitutes and gave his regulars a much needed rest. The Orange and Black stock as possible state champions took an upward trend as a result of the contest. The ability of the Tigers to take the ball down the floor in a flash of speed was the sensation of the game.

Yakima at Seattle

Friclay the thirteenth may not be a jinx day but it would be advisable to duck your head when you tell that to a Tiger basketeer. The lakima five was considered as the hardest bunnp in the way of the Orange and Black which once over would put the Lewis and Clark tean in the finals with an exceptinnal good chance for the championship. The Yakima boys sprung a surprise when they sunk five basket: in succession from the center of the floor. The Tigers seemed unable to get started and the half rolled around with the seore 18 to 6 with the Yakima tean in the lead.

It was when the score was $2+$ to $1+$ with less than four minutes to go that the lewis and Clark started a strong rally which netted them 9 points, one point too few to tie the Tpplepickers. The Tigers had lost the crucial game of the season and their hopes of state championship, went glimmering into the shadows. They had given the state champions the hardest fight in their path of victory.

Whatcom at Seattle

They were defeated in the game be the eass margin of four points, coming out on the small end of the 20-16 score. The gane was minus any spectacular or sensational plays and showed the dejected feeling which marked the team of championship caliber at the end of hard vear.

The New Lewis and Clark Playfield Project

Started with the Class of June, 1925

 III: greatest of any of Lewis and (lark projects-the purchase of a $$ 53.000$ playfield-was started early: this semester. Student and faculty efforts, without solicitation for money from outsiders, will again be the factors which will carry out the phayfied plans in the sante manner in which the organ was bought.1.ewis and Clark has been in dire need of a large athletic fied for years. When the stadium wats condement, immediate action was taken he those most interested in secing l.ewis and (lark carry out her policy of "athletics for all".

The old Manito golf links, consisting of alnost 53 acres of level and cleared ground. were decided on as the most a vailable place on the south side for a high selool field. Paper:s were signed, and an enthusiastic student body immediately started building up the purchase fund. tributect, until at the present time several thontisand chollars have already loeen paid.

An old church building adjoining the field was purchased for temporary locker and shower accommodations, and contracting companies were started at work laying out three baseball diamonds and a quarter mile ruming track. The track and freshman baseball squads sawe willingly of their time and strength in hastening the time when the playfield could be used for practice work.

The new Tewis and Clark playfield, which was dedicated sometime ago with a fitting ceromony is located one block west of Cirand boulerard at "1hirty-thind arentue. It is easily reached by street carr and anto, and is sure to prove just what the school has needed.

From now on, every boy and everv wirl who attends Teewis and Clark high school will have all the adrantages possible in the way of physical education. The playfield campaign is on!

Track

The Giover Stadium condemmation early this spring save track at Lewis and Clark a glonmy aspect. 'There was no other place in Spokane available for practice use, so the cancelling of track from the athletic roster for 192 was seriously considered.

A special measure was passed by the city conncil in regard to repairing the stadimm, however, so track practice was continued. Outdoor work started sereral weeks later than usual, lout Coach 11 : H. Orion found himself with some material which had developed swiftly in indoor workouts.

A few weeks of practice showed that I.ewis and Clark's track lopes rested on the following boys: Wilmer Siegert. Sorman Ericson, and Glen Phillips-dashes: Dwight Laíone and Willard Meyerhoft-quarter mile: Charles Geiger and TIoward Leendersten-mile; Maurice McDonnell, Robert Lund, and Aphonse Coppula-half mile: Curtis Odell. ## Rifle WיTlRING the championship of the Northwest, championship of Spokane, the Ware Brothers trophy, and taking tenth place in the national high school amateur matches the Lewis and Clark rifle team completed the most successful season that it has ever enjoyed, and suffered but one defeat at the hands of the champions of the West, Dhoenix, Arizona.

Athletic letters were awarded to Harold Dean, Bryce Roark (Captain), Kenneilh Klopp, (manager) Vernon Robertson, Bruce [owell and Estel Raymond.

Other members of the tean who distinguished themselves in the matel against the Jndians and other matches in which the tean engaged were Frances Ghiselin, Edward Bloom, Gordon Brown, WVard Smith and Redmond Stout. Edward Bloom Gordon Brown are the only members of the tean graduating with this class.

North Central was defeated February 20 for the championship of Spokane by fifty-four points. Dean, Roark, Bloom, Raymond and Powell were the men who made this score.

The team was ably coached by Joseph Gr. Mc. Wacken, one of the schools foremost sportsmen.

Swimming

 GREEX team and an invasion of the influenza plague accounted for Lewis and Clark's poor showing in the swimming meet with Nortli Central. The boys were all inexperienced, but worked hard and made the lndians earn everv point that they received. The North Central team on the other hand was made up almost entirely of old men who had served several years on the team. The fact that there had been no swimming team for two years at Lewis and Clark also had a stronge effect on the outcome of the meet.Captain Erich Richter gave a good accotht of himself in the 200 yard free style. In the 100 yard breast-stroke, Rader of the Indians set a new city record with a time of $1: 18+5$. Plankenburg, Tiger freshman, followed Rader closely atl the Page One Hundred Tacenty-One way so a better mark by the yearling may be expected before he becones an alumnuts.

The plange for distance furnished the feature of the meet when William Samish, star Tiger plunger, plunged the length of the tank in 50 seconds flat after Sandell, leading Indian planger had twice made the length in the best time of 57 seeonels. Paul Armold in the dives and Kenneth MeCoy in the 100 yard backstroke also showed up well.

The remarkable showing of the Tigers, for under such overcoming obstacles the showing was remarkable, was largely due to the patient coaching of eoach I'. G. "Pete" Hupperton. Mr. Hupperton's derotion of his. time to the team saved the Tigers from an overwhelming defeat.

Girls' Swimming

the two swimming meets between North Central and Lewis and Clark, North Central came out victorious with a score of 53-2t on March 13 at the I. C. tank and a seore of $5+-23$ on April 17 in the North side tank. Miss Coral Moran was the star swimmer for the Tiger tean, having broken the city records for the fifty yard dash at the first meet and broken her own record at the second, besides swimming the 100 rard crawl in $84 / 5$ seconds less time than the record held by Miss Eleanor Hove of North Central. Jiss Joran is an 11A. Threce other city records were broken at the second meet by members of the North Central team.

In the first meet, Coral Moran, took first place in the fifty yard dash and Jean Woodward took first in the 100 yard breast. . 111 other premier places were taken be North Central mermaids. ## Baseball

WHEN seven lettermen greeted Coach 1.entard W . Willer at his call for basehall candidates this spring, prospects were excellent for the best tean that had represented the Orange and black in years.

An almost complete infield of veterans was on hand from the strat, and two outficklers ğ* ene Coach Elder a mucleus for a fast, hard hitting outfield.

Robert I avis and Leonard lee, who formed the battery that worked all through the ammal series last year, again settled a maze of troubles. 1 a ${ }^{\text {erane }}$ Seiverson proved to be a good understudy to Davis, while Ed. Hickey was found ready to take leees place when not playing in the ontfield.
"Cal" Smith at first, Eugene Muller at second, and Ray l.uck at short, returned to star again as in 192t. Roy l'etersen took Chapman's old berth at third and held it down all during the beginning of the season.

Eed Hickey and 1,yle Maskell turned out for their old places in the field, and Clarion Aster was found to be of first string catiber and was placed in right field.

The tean as described above worked in all the early season games, and the combination became feared for its hitting and fielding strength. In the first North Central gance, however. the combination faltered somewhat.

As a consequence, Coach Elder took "Shorty" Muller to the outfeld, put L ack on second, and moved l'etersen to shortstop. Eel Swan, who broke into the 102t series, was given his big chance at third in the second game, and delisered in big league style. Aster was taken out when Swan joined the first teann, but he was alwas ready to go in at a moment's notice. and he gave the team's reserve strength a decided boost.

These lineup shifts started the tean to flashing again as in the early season play. I'eterson, who probably has the most perfeet and fastest peg from short to first that has ever been possessed by any Spokane high school player, showed improvement at once, and helped to make the inficld work like a single compact unit. Swan adeled batting power and helped L.ewis and Clark win the second game of the series.

Spokane college. Fort TVright, Gonzaga High, Colville, and other teams were the early season victims of the Tigers. An especailly interesting series was played with the Fort soldiers, the Tigers taking it two games to one.

Second Game

Fans who enjoy real slugging were immensely pleased by the second series game. The Tigers hit hard and ran wild on the bases to an 11 to 5 vietory.

Both teams got thirteen hits in the gane, but numerous North Central errors let in many of the Lewis and Clark tallies. Despite the Indians heavy hitting, Leonard Lee fanned 9 men and was steady in the pinches.

Lewis and Clark got four runs in the first inning and was never headed the rest of the game. Lee and Xuller starred at bat for the Tigers, while Lamson, Indian captain, was the sensation of the contest. He got two triplets and two singles in five times at bat, and stole two bases. He also upheld his reputation by playing a wonderful game in center field.

Alout 2000 rooters formed the very partisan crowd that packerl the Nat grandstand. Special cars were waiting at both schools, and furnished a good way for the spectators to get to the park and see the slugging battle.

The day was dark and rain threatened, so the crowd was smaller than expected for the third contest. Lemard Lee worked well in the box, fanning 12 and allowing 10 scattered hits. I'ritchard gave 12 hits and fanned 5.

Lewis and Clark started scoring in the first iming. and made runs in alternate frames from then om. North Central got three runs in the fourth, when, after Tee had struck out two and had two strikes on I'ritchard, the Indian pitcher hit a double and scored three runners.

Tennis

 ons: Bussm: Robert Elowd, and Joe Baty were the reterans who returned to the temnis squad this spring. Several other good players were uncovered by Coad H. C. G. Fry in the first few weeks of practice.

Jeets were lined up with Cheney high school. Coeur d’: Nene, Gonzaga, and North Central. A ranking tourmament was also arranged to help get the players into winning form

Tennis is rapidly becoming a most popular sport at Lewis and Clark, despite Spokanes lack of a sufficient number of good courts. About forty boys reported for the initial turnout. but Coach Fry was forced to cut the squad to about thirty.
Cheney Mect.

"The Forepart of Time Enough"

DO THINGS in the forepart of time enough," was the wise advice often heard in the class-room of the late Professor Libby of the LEWIS and CLARK High School. So, Seniors and coming Seniors---consider thoughtfully and not just passingly those five words.

$G$HE SHAW and BORDEN Company for thirtyfive years has used this same fundamental principle. To outline briefly; our expression of "The Forepart of Time Enough" plan has been put into action:--
-By establishing a progressive Printing Business in step with the spirit of our Spokane and Great Inland Empire
-With an Engraving service that has won the patronage of schools and individuals appreciative of the newest and truest.

- By building a Kodak Department rewarded in honest effort to insure results for your Photo work.
